

A Tarot formula

No Tarot formula over rides a good knowledge of the cards, and regular practice.

But it can help to consider the steps needed to reach an accurate reading.

As always- consider this a basis and adjust according to your needs.

I haven't put a number to "clear and focused mind" because a bit like having a Tarot deck- I think it is a non-negotiable part of reading Tarot.

Validation is the other part of reading Tarot accurately.

Ensuring you start every reading (well most- there is no "every" in Tarot really) by looking either at the past or present, and checking to make sure your reading feels right to the querent.

The checking throughout a longer reading that the querent feels your reading is on point, helpful and valid. Like a chef needs to check their cooking as they go- so do we as Tarot readers.
